

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY TODAY FOR PIONEER COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers Receive Congratulations on 50th Anniversary

With the span of half a century passed in happy married life, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers are receiving today the congratulations of hundreds of well-wishers—some of them acquaintances for all of the 50-year period—at the family home at 1725 Keolu street.

Mr. Lewers is one of the founders of Lewers & Cooke, and is today one of the active directors, although he is over 80 years of age. His wife was Miss Kate Carter, a descendant of the old Honolulu family by that name, and the couple were married on July 16, 1867. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. S. C. Ramon, an early day Hawaiian missionary and the father of Samuel Damon.

An interesting reminiscence of the wedding 50 years ago was recalled to Mr. Lewers this morning by Jack Lucas, while congratulations were being extended and received. Lucas recalled that the evening before the wedding, he, a 10-year-old boy, with Alfred Carter were playing about the house where the wedding ceremony was performed, while Lucas' father, George Lucas, and Mr. Lewers were laying matting in preparation for the event.

Mr. Lewers remembered the occasion and laughingly supplied another reminiscence regarding a well-known Honolulu who at the time was three or four years old and was also playing around the house, but insistent upon wearing no clothes on account of the July heat. "I can see him yet as a little curly-haired tot," Mr. Lewers remarked.

To appreciate the coincidence of the congratulation of Mr. Lewers by Mr. Lucas, it must be remembered that Mr. Lucas is now himself approaching near to the 60th year in life. It was with the late George Lucas that Mr. Lewers got his first start in life in Honolulu, when he came here as a boy less than 20 years of age in 1866.

One of Three Merchant Leaders

Mr. Lewers is one of the three merchant princes of Honolulu who have helped make the city grow from a village to the present status of the metropolis of the Mid-Pacific. His surviving contemporaries are P. C. Jones (retired) and F. A. Schaefer, still in harness like Mr. Lewers. On February 21 he had lived for 61 years, having arrived in the ship Raduga from around the Horn on that date in 1856, and on March 15 last he had reached the 61st anniversary of his birth.

Starting out here as a carpenter he was invited by his cousin in 1860 to enter the employ of Lewers & Dickens, lumber merchants. In 1877 he and F. J. Lowrey bought into the firm, which had changed its title to Lewers & Cooke, the latter name representing the late C. M. Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewers upon their golden anniversary enjoy the presence of their children and grandchildren. Mrs. Arthur F. Wall is their daughter, and Will Lewers, lately retired from the big constabulary of the New York state to enter business with Lewers & Cooke, their son.

In giving a few local reminiscences on his 80th birthday, Mr. Lewers mentioned that in 1860 Honolulu boasted only three carriages. Today apparently there are not any more of that kind of vehicle, its place having been taken by thousands of automobiles.

In honor of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lewers, a reception is to be held at the family home this afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock, which will be attended by nearly all of the old Honolulu residents. No formal invitations have been issued for the reception, but a notice of the occasion has been published so all old acquaintances and

HAWAII RECEIVES 5718 IMMIGRANTS, INCREASE OF 1003

One thousand and three more immigrants were admitted to the territory during the fiscal year which closed June 30, than for the previous year.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, the total number of persons admitted was 5718, and the number deported 211. In the year ending June 30, 1916, admissions were 4715 and deportations 60.

Immigration authorities here say the new literacy test law which went into effect May 1 of this year has not cut down the number of emigrants from Japan to Hawaii very materially.

To date only half a dozen have been deported because of the literacy test, which requires that the immigrant shall be able to read 40 words in any language he selects, before he can be admitted into the United States.

Would-Be Hercules Meets Death When Strength Is Taxed

Koa, a Hawaiian employee of the J. L. Young Engineering Co., was almost instantly killed this morning when an 8-inch pipe fell on his head while he was at work on an oil pipe line at Pier 16.

Becoming impatient at the slow progress which was being made in raising the piece of pipe, Koa, a big muscular man, jumped beneath it and pushed it up above his head and free of the sling which was supporting it. The weight, in spite of his great strength, proved too much for him and, unsupported by the other workmen who perceived the danger and jumped to places of safety, the pipe fell, striking him on the head.

At the time Koa was in a boat. Others employed on the pipe line and who were witnesses of the accident were John Mann, the foreman; Dan Makahuna, Manuel Diaz, John Diaz, John Peters and Dilgo Sanchez.

An examination made of the body, shortly after the accident, failed to disclose a fractured skull, although there was evidence of internal hemorrhage.

PHOTOS OF VOLCANOS SENT TO WASHINGTON

Photographs of Kilauea and Haleakala have been forwarded to Miss Edna Peltz, secretary of Robert Yard, of the bureau of national parks in Washington. A number of especially interesting scenes were gathered by the Hawaii Promotion Committee, and the Kilauea National Park is expected to be featured in the next issue of the National Parks Bulletin.

Friends would know of the celebration.

Although far advanced in years, Mr. and Mrs. Lewers are both enjoying excellent health. Mr. Lewers was down to his place of business this morning as usual, but when questioned as to his rule for a long, happy and prosperous life, he good naturedly refused to moralize—nor even for the younger generations.

However, in his conversation with Mr. Lucas, he perhaps unintentionally made apparent his code of life by a chance remark:

"Trying to do right" are the four words, which probably sum up his code. But to this would be added, by all his friends who know his cheery disposition, two other words—"keep good-natured."

LOCAL AND GENERAL

The Hawaiian band will play at Emma square this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Temperature of the water at Waikiki at 7 this morning is reported by the Moana hotel as 77 1/2 degrees.

Having completed a tour of 23 cities on the mainland and planned to make a trip to the Orient, Inga Orner, Norwegian soprano of the New York Metropolitan Opera company, is expecting to stop off in Honolulu according to word received from her last week.

Fred Kahea, whose discharge from the band was reported a few days ago, has been reinstated. He said this morning that the difficulty was due to a misunderstanding which has been settled and he wishes to abseive Band master Balan from any intimation of unfair treatment.

R. C. Bowman, vocational instructor of the Maui public schools, who is in charge of the shop work of the summer school, had his right hand painfully cut Friday when it came in contact with the sharp knife of a revolving planer. He received three cuts—two of his fingers being injured and a long and deep slash on the side of his hand.

Honolulu lodge No. 800, L. O. O. M., entertained last week with a smoker, in honor of a large delegation from various lodges in the territory. Plates were laid for about sixty persons and it was preceded by an initiation of a large class of candidates. Several speeches were enjoyed. Preparations were begun for the annual affair, which takes place the latter part of the year.

ARREST FACES

200 STILL SHY ON LICENSE TAX

Although the collections from the business licenses are much greater today than on the same date last year, there are still approximately 200 who have not paid.

A list containing all these names is to be handed to the city attorney's office today by D. L. Conkling, city treasurer, and warrants for their arrest will be sworn out as fast as they can be made out.

"Just because the collections are larger this year than last is no reason why the licenses should not be paid at once. They are already 15 days delinquent," said Conkling.

JUDD TO INSPECT GRAZING OUTLOOK

C. S. Judd, executive officer of the territorial board of agriculture and forestry, plans to visit the island of Kahoolawe in the near future to investigate the advisability of recommending the issuance of grazing permits to persons desiring to raise cattle there to increase the local meat supply.

The territorial food commission recently discussed a suggestion that the island be cleared of goats and the land be utilized for grazing purposes, with the stipulation, however, that the goats not be wantonly slaughtered but used for food purposes as far as possible. According to the commission, Kahoolawe abounds in cactus, pill grass and kiawe beans, which is excellent stock fodder.

Securing Kahoolawe for grazing purposes is part of a plan of the commission to put to use all unused pasture land in the territory for the raising of livestock, preferably cattle.

A Chinese called at the office of the commission this morning saying that he wanted to secure certain unused lands at Waianae for the raising of calves. The question of securing permits for persons to graze cattle on the land in question already has been looked into by the commission.

LIQUOR HUNTERS ESCAPE MOBBI

Hereafter, License Inspectors W. H. Hutton and Jack Roberts intend to go armed when making raids as the result of an experience last Saturday afternoon, when they were threatened with clubs by five or six big Tawakia after they had seized a stock of liquor in a house in Hueston lane.

They had been informed of the big quantity of liquor purchased by the Hawaiian owner of the house and securing a search warrant went to the house and confiscated it. Meanwhile they were threatened with clubs, but managed to bluff off the Hawaiians.

Taking a portion of the liquor, all he could carry to the waiting automobile, Roberts hurried to the police station with it. Hutton in the meantime facing the angry Hawaiians and guarding the remaining liquor. Roberts then returned with a number of policemen and the men were arrested. "After this we'll carry our guns, even in the daytime," declared the license inspectors in telling of the encounter this morning.

BORN

CLARK—To Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Clark, 2115 McKinley street, a daughter, July 14.

Choi Chung Sung, Korean, who, it is alleged, tried to compel the parents of a young Hawaiian girl to let her marry him by threatening them with a gun, had his trial in the district court postponed until July 20 this morning. He was stopped in his design to marry the girl by Joe Leal, the juvenile officer.

BANANA WASTE PROBLEM VEXES FOOD EXPERTS

Chairman of Transportation Committee Urges Increased Consumption at Home

John Waterhouse, chairman of the transportation committee of the territorial food commission, says that his committee, after an investigation, finds itself unable to solve the problem of relieving the banana congestion at Honolulu.

With a thousand or more bunches of bananas rotting each week, owing to lack of cargo space to carry them to the mainland markets, and with coast dealers cabling here for further shipments of the fruit, the food commission, as well as its transportation committee, admits the situation to be serious and, as Mr. Waterhouse says, there appears to be no solution of the problem at the present time.

In the opinion of Mr. Waterhouse, suspension of the coastwise shipping laws to allow Hawaiian bananas to be shipped to the coast in foreign bottoms might relieve the situation, but another problem is whether, under these conditions, the Japanese shipping companies would be willing to cooperate.

It is pointed out that the Japanese steamers from the Orient are loaded down with cargo, in spite of the high freight rates, and the question is whether they would have proper cargo space in which to store bananas for transportation to the coast.

While considerable cargo is unloaded from these steamers at Honolulu, this is taken from the hold and, if it is open, is filled with bananas, the fruit simply being "cooked" by the time it reached the mainland, owing to the heat. Thorough ventilation has been found to be essential in shipping bananas, and the fruit is generally placed on deck.

In Mr. Waterhouse's opinion, the present banana congestion is due to an over-production. Local steamers, to as great an extent as possible, are taking bananas to the coast, but in spite of these heavy shipments the fruit continues to pile up in local warehouses.

"It seems to me," says Mr. Waterhouse, "that we will have to find some way to use these bananas at home, but how they shall be used appears to present another difficult problem."

The price for Hawaiian bananas on the mainland is high, running up to as much as $1.60 a bunch, and the demand is reported to be steadily increasing.

Within a few days the transportation committee may report to the commission that it is unable to solve the shipment problem. Asked if the committee would further investigate, Mr. Waterhouse said today that he could not see what else could be done.

A. L. Dean, executive officer of the food commission, has a sample of flour made from the banana, but he says that the product is not yet in the market. A mainland publication is said to have printed an article recently dealing with the making of a very excellent quality of bread from banana flour.

How bananas may be utilized at home probably will be one of the first topics of discussion when the women's committee of the commission, headed by Mrs. A. C. Alexander, begins work.

YOUNG ADOPTS MEATLESS DAY

Like 20 of the big mainland hotels, the Young hotel has instituted a "meatless day" once a week for the last six weeks. Friday is the day of the week when no meat is served, turtle steak being the nearest approach to it. Otherwise oysters and several kinds of fish constitute the piece de resistance. With the exception of Hartle's restaurant, which began observing a "meatless day" once a week during last week, the Young hotel is the only hotel or restaurant in Honolulu which has followed the patriotic precedent of the mainland hotels.

Harry E. Stinson, manager of the Young hotel, points out that by leaving meat off the menu one day a week that one-seventh of the usual amount of meat is not used. "This reduces the amount of freight which must be brought here from the mainland, as much of the meat is imported," he adds.

As yet no movement has been made to eliminate veal and lamb from the regular menus, although this is being done on the mainland. Manager Stinson says that most of the mainland hotels also have one day when no white bread is served.

Many of the imported luxuries now appearing on the menus of the better hotels will by necessity have to be taken off in time as it will be impossible to secure them, Manager Stinson thinks.
